

If you are interested in quantifying local adaptation and environmental associations, you must understand the nature of quantitative traits and the extent to which they can be changed by selection.

Adaptation - A phenotypic trait with a functional role that has evolved through and is maintained by natural selection.

- Spatial component: Heterogeneity in the landscape facilitated differential selection processes
- Temporal Component: History of trait within evolutionary lineages.