Summary

- The proper model is the one that best describes your data. It may be a complicated model, iteratively defined, or a simple one.

- There is currently a lot of work going on surrounding model selection in distance-based approaches—stay tuned things will change.